

“Can I see you on my desk for a minute Miss Hayes?” David’s voice drawled out of her intercom causing Maddie to dampen with arousal. Had she heard him correctly? Surely, he was teasing. If only he wasn’t she thought. Maddie could remember the last time she had been physical with David. After all, every encounter with him was imprinted forever on her brain. They had kissed a few times in the past few months but that is as far as it had gone. And since she had told David that they were friends, pals, he had kept her at arms’ length. Stupid Maddie, she cursed herself. Still trying to deny that David owned her heart. And her body!

David couldn’t believe those words had come out of his mouth. Freudian slip? He wished he could have bitten the words back. Maybe she didn’t hear what he said. She never seemed to hear what he had to say so why should this time be different?

‘Coming!’ David heard her say.

Oh how he wished! He thought as he felt himself harden. Damn that woman. She owned his heart and body.

David didn’t know what had possessed him to call her into his office. He really had nothing of importance to tell her. He did have something big and important he would like to show her but now that they were “pals” that was probably off limits. He just needed to see her.

His mind struggled for a reason why he summoned her. All thoughts or excuses flew from his mind when she entered his office in a cloud of lavender and lemon. Silk dress molded to her curves. Those curves that haunted his dreams both sleeping and awake. Those legs. How he remembered how they felt wrapped around his waist...

Maddie walked into David's office and saw him perched on his desk. The slow smile that ran across his face when she walked in turned her knees to jelly. She stood before him and waited, she didn't have to wait long. David stood up until they were mere inches apart. She could feel the heat from his body and feel the whisper of his breathe on her face. He looked down at her with smoldering green eyes and that wicked smile that could turn her on in a heart beat.

"Why did you want to see me?" Maddie asked him

"See you what" he teased

Maddie didn't feel like bantering today. Her body and soul ached for this man who was happy to tease and annoy her. She turned to walk out of his office.

"Missed you." She heard him whisper.

Maddie turned around to face him. "Missed you too" she heard herself reply with a catch in her voice.

David didn't know exactly what he was going to do until he did it. He stood in front of Maddie aroused, throwing caution to the wind. He could smell her perfume and he needed to feel her in his arms. David reached out and pulled her to him. Her eyes widened but she didn't resist. He covered her mouth with his causing a white hot flame to ignite between them. Maddie leaned into his kiss pulling him closer.

"I really need to see you on my desk Miss Hayes" David drawled in that bedroom voice that was all David. Maddie shivered as David pushed her gently on his desk. He began to run his hands up and down her legs in soft smooth movements that were driving her crazy. She tried to get up to pull him on top of her but he just smirked down at her and continued his journey with his hands. Up her calves, over her knees, up her thighs under her skirt until she was writhing with desire. His mouth followed his hands and his hands began to pull off her satin panties and unbutton her dress. Maddie's hands tried to reach out to David but he was too far away. He was running the show here. Before she knew it Maddie lay completely undressed on David's desk with his lips burning a path over her body.

She needed to touch him, feel his arousal. She was at the point where she thought she would burst unless she touched him when he put her hands on the bulge in his pants. He wanted her there was no doubt Maddie thought. She began to unbuckle his belt. David groaned as Maddie pulled down his zipper as he sprung free into her hands "Oh David" she breathed. David pulled off his pants as Maddie tore the buttons off of his shirt. He bent over and covered her mouth darting his tongue in and out of her mouth slowly then quickly then slowly again. Maddie thought she would burst into flames as David played her body like a fine instrument. He knew how and where to touch her causing her to wriggle with desire.

David placed his lips on the spot in the back of Maddie's neck. He knew that drove her crazy as his tongue lazily flicked back and forth over that special place.

Maddie's moans were music to his ears. He felt himself begin to pulsate with his desire for her. He lay over her and Maddie guided him into her. He began to rotate his hips as he felt her warm wetness tighten around him. He felt her movements match his as she began to moan his name over and over in his ear.

"David!" "David!" "David!" she cried out as she came in waves of pleasure.

David followed with his release moments later.

Both lay motionless on David's desk. David began to play with Maddie's hair as he gazed into her eyes. "That was great, pal" he teased.

Maddie reached up and began nibbling David's ear "Next time the appointment is on my desk!" she promised.

"You're the boss!" he laughed getting down to business again.